You owe it to yourself to be well informed

Which brands of products do you use and why?

When it comes to quality, not all aesthetic products are the same. Understanding how they may differ is important and something to discuss with your practitioner.

Has the product been extensively tested and researched?

Aesthetic products should be backed by science and have a proven track record, so make sure you ask about the safety and effectiveness of the product.

QUESTIONS YOU SHOULD ASK

ABOUT FACIAL AESTHETIC PROCEDURES

Is the manufacturer one you trust, and why?

You only want the best for your body. Learn more about the heritage, quality and reputation of the company who makes the product.

How widely is the product used around the world?

Confidence comes with knowledge and experience. Find out more about the product's used by patients and practitioners around the world.

How satisfied are your patients with the results?

To receive the product that best meets your needs, explain the result you want to achieve and ask to see other patients' outcomes.
